THE DEWEY-BRICKER PLEDGE

A ten-point pledge which he said would be followed by the Republican administration if the GOP national ticket wins in November has been by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Here are the objectives he said he and Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, the vice presidential nominee, are determined to establish if they win office.

"An administration devoted to public service instead of public picking."

"An administration working in harmony with Congress."

"An administration in which the cabinet is restored as a responsible instrument of government."

"An administration in which you will not have to support three men to do one man's job."

"An administration which will root out waste and bring order out of chaos."

"An administration which will give the people of this country value received for the taxes they pay."

"An administration made up of the ablest men and women in America who will receive full authority to do their jobs and will be let alone to do them."

"An administration free from the influence of Communists and the dominion of corrupt big city machines."

"An administration in which the constitution is respected so that the liberties of our people shall again be secure."

"An administration which will devote itself to the singleminded purpose of jobs and opportunity for all."

Collins Is Chosen

Port Clyde Summer Resident
Now A Trustee Of Boston University

Charles F. Collins, agency secretary of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, has been elected a member of the board of trustees of Boston University, from which he graduated in 1912.

Long active in alumni affairs, Mr. Collins recently became president of the Alumni Association and chairman of the Alumni Fund. He is a past president of the Alumni Association of Harvard Business School, from which he received his M. B. A. degree in 1914, and is a former national president of the SAE fraternity.

Mr. Collins has been associated with the home office of the New England Mutual for 30 years, and received his C.L.U. designation in 1937.

Mr. Collins has been a Summer resident of Port Clyde, all his life. He is the owner of the Collins Homestead at Port Clyde which has been in his family for three generations.

Five Vice Presidents of the United States have become President—Adams, Jefferson, VanBuren, Theodore Roosevelt and Coolidge.

Farm Bureau Annual

Knox-Lincoln Farm Bureau
Observes Its 25th Anniversary

This year's annual meeting of the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau will be its 25th anniversary. In November, 1919, a group of farmers in the two counties decided to have a farm bureau organization in order to assist the two county agents at that time in conducting Extension work.

Roger Gowell of Warren had been county agent in Knox County for two years and Sidney Evans of Wiscasset had been the Lincoln County agent. This work had been limited to calls on farmers and interesting them in carrying out newer practices.

The first meeting was held in Warren and the following officers were elected: President, Harold Nash; vice president, O. H. Rollins; secretary-treasurer, Ralph P. Conant; Crops, Walter Ayer; Dairy, A. M. Mayo; Poultry, Frank M. Johnson; 4-H Club, Charles Webb; Farm Account Chester N. Light.

There were nine communities organized at that time—Alna, Friendship, Hope, Nobleboro, Rockland, Thomaston, Waldoboro, Warren, Washington. Many familiar names were found among those leaders in those towns. Alna, George Walker; Friendship, P. D. Jameson, now in Waldoboro; Hope, E. N. Hobbs; W. K. Robbins, Nobleboro; O. H. Rollins, C. M. Rolfe; Rockland, R. P. Conant; Thomaston, A. M. Mayo, W. C. Swift; Waldoboro, F. M. Johnson, C. N. Light; Warren, S. E. Norwood, C. V. McIntire, P. H. Wyllie, C. A. Webb; Washington, H. B. Cunningham. The total membership in the Farm Bureau was 146 men. The women's group did not organize until two years later.

The first program covered 4-H Clubs, better seed, oats and silage corn. Dairy feed schools and a campaign to eliminate the scrub bull. Poultry culling demonstration and selection of breeders and farm accounts.

At the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau which will be held at the Community Building, Rockland, Oct. 27, at 10:15, a special feature of the program will be the early work of the Farm Bureau presented by Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Nash of Camden, who were members of the first Executive Board.

Another feature of the meeting will be a talk by John M. Richardson, business manager of The Courier-Gazette Rockland on "Maine Shipping in the past Twenty-five Years." Mr. Richardson has made a study of Maine ships and will present some very interesting information on this subject. He is the author of "Steamboat Lore," a book on ships of Penobscot Bay.

Another speaker on the afternoon program will be Mrs. Hortense Monaghan, former home demonstration agent in Washington County. Mrs. Monaghan will demonstrate different ways that old clothes can be remodeled and how a change in accessories can create a new outfit.

The Union or Socialist Soviet Republics occupies one-sixth of the earth's land surface.

PARTRIDGE HUNT IN FRANCE

Humor And Tragedy Mingle In Letter Received From Oliver Collamore

Thomaston High School graduates who reside in Friendship will be interested in the following letter written by Oliver Collamore, who is with the armed forces in France, and dedicated to Harry Stewart and the memory of the late Luke Armstrong. It is headed "Partridge Hunting in France or One Way To Fight War."

"We have at our hospital several French civilians who act as guards to keep out sightseers and have an eye on the German prisoners. They belong to the F.F.I., a sort of civilian militia, organized since the Americans have come. One of these guards asked my captain to accompany him hunting but since the Captain is no hunter he suggested that I go.

"At first I was a little leery for fear that the hunting ground might also turn out to be a mine field, but the Frenchman said that he knew where all the mine fields were since he had been forced by the Germans to help lay them. The Frenchman only had one gun, a 16-gauge double barreled shotgun, but he insisted that I use it all the while so he acted as guide and game bearer. Yes game bearer.

"These partridges are quite plentiful around here. They look like our partridges but are smaller and might be described as a cross between a quail and a partridge. Their habits are more like our quail however, i.e., they hang out in corn fields, etc., rather than thick woods. They are usually found in coveys.

"We hadn't gone far when we came across a farmer who said that there was a partridge which had just lit in his potato patch. We stamped around but couldn't find him. Suddenly he jumped out from under my feet and I let him have it. I saw some feathers fly but didn't see him go down but then we heard him flapping and located him wounded in a brook in some alders.

"Shortly afterward we flushed a covey of about six and I got two out of the bunch. Sez I to myself, Guess this army life has improved my eye." We put up several more coveys and I began missing. Had the usual number of alibi shots. Once the gun misfired, once the Frenchman was in the way, etc. Hit one bird that we couldn't find out before the morning was over I had a total of five birds.

"Gave the Captain two and my refugee friend in town the other three and am invited to dinner. They actually need the food. If I could get a permanent assignment as hunter I could no doubt relieve the food crisis in Europe. Jimmy Fales stuff.

"Have considered looking up the guide again to get an affidavit from him to substantiate this account. I did take a couple of snapshots but doubt if I can send them through the mail.

"During the course of the trip we did come on some deserted German emplacements with a lot of shells laying around and one mine all set up with a trip wire. It always adds a little zest to a hunt if you don't know at what moment you will be blown skyward. The hazards of the chase etc. So much for the hunting situation.

"A couple of days ago I had a chance to go into a city that we had just captured the day before. Went into some fortifications and a couple of German hospitals. A lot of the patients as well as the German medics were still there. Did a little small scale looting but didn't get much of value. I wanted to get a German pistol and some binoculars but the infantry boys had picked over every thing pretty well before we got there. Saw a lot of terrible destruction and took some pictures that should be good. Was seized with a morbid desire to take a picture of a dead German so did. Not very pretty.

"We Americans are sure lucky not to have these wars fought on our soil. As an example, the father of this French refugee friend of mine was wounded three times in the last war and died later from the effects. His grandfather was killed. Now his home, business and everything the family owned has gone up in smoke. Inflation has wiped out all their finances and God knows what the future holds for them.

"Am having it a little easy now but don't know for how long. Am feeling fine and everything is OK."

New Carroll Store

Handsome Place of Business Opened With 1500 In Attendance

The Carroll Cut Rate Store held its formal opening in its new quarters at 404 Main street Friday, with more than 1500 persons visiting the newly appointed place of business, which was attractively decorated with more than 20 bouquets sent in by friends along the street and from out of town.

This location, occupied for many years by the Huston-Tuttle Book Company, is the third one in Rockland, according to Harry Gerrish, the genial proprietor. Carroll Cut Rate occupied for one year the store now housing the Economy Clothing Shop. The second location at 278 Main street, opposite the head of Tillson avenue, was the home of the store for six and one-half years.

The new place of business is 20 feet wide and 45 feet long, with a storage space in the rear which extends another 15 feet, giving about three times the space as in the store just vacated.

The attractive wall shelving and display cases are of maple; the floor is of Burgundy and ivory asphalt tile; the walls above the shelves are done in light orchid and the ceiling is in white. The electric equipment is modern in every respect.

Mr. Gerrish and his regular staff, consisting of Mrs. Maurice Nute, Mrs. Alvin Small, Mrs. Irving Blackman and Mrs. Gerrish, were augmented on the opening day by Mr. Gerrish's son, Douglas; Maurice Crockett of Manchester, N. H., and Mrs. Philip Crockett of Stonington. The display fixtures were by the Ideal Equipment Company of Lewiston; the floor by M. E. Wotton & Son; the carpenter work and painting by E. L. Spear & Company, and the electrical equipment by House-Sherman, Inc.

Post War Planning

Showing Results Of the Chamber Of Commerce
Investigation

The Rockland Chamber of Commerce committee on Post War Planning, consisting of Lucius E. Jones, chairman; H. P. Blodgett, E. B. Crockett, H. C. Cowan, F. H. Bird, F. C. Gatcombe, J. M. Pomeroy, David Connelly H. C. Newberg, P. P. Bicknell, J. E. Blaisdell, and Mayor E. R. Veazie, has completed the survey of 17 Rockland industries.

Chairman Jones has submitted a report of the survey to John Baxter of Brunswick, chairman of the Committee on Economic Development for the State of Maine. The report furnishes the following information:

(1) Employed in 1940, 587 men; 241 women; total, 828.

(2) Employed at present, 961 men; 261 women; total, 1222.

(3) First estimate of the total of those now employed, who would not seek work with present employer in a postwar year, 514 men; 6 women; total, 520. Of this number, 175 men and 11 women, a total of 186, plan to return to former homes outside of Rockland; 339 men and 5 women, a total of 344, plan to return to former job in the community, and five women who would not seek employment.

(4) Balance, present employees who will remain on payroll after the war, 447 men; 255 women, total 702.

(5) Former employees now in the armed service, 127 men; 9 women, total, 136.

(6) Postwar objective, 574 men; 264 women, total, 838.

(7) Estimated number of employees needed in these 17 industries after the war, 409 men; 343 women, total 752.

(8) Comparison; estimated postwar employment and job objective.

(a) Number estimated without jobs, 86.

Jones, in his report to Mr. Baxter, advises that about one-half of the commercial survey, which includes stores, both wholesale and retail, oil companies and all other business which is not strictly industrial, has been completed. The balance of this survey will be made in the very near future and is being conducted from the school department, and a domestic survey is being conducted by the Citizens Service Corps Committee, of which Mrs. Christopher Roberts is chairman, and Miss Dorothy Lawry is neighborhood leader chairman.

The consumer questionnaire, designed to determine purchases and repairs which will be made in Rockland after the war, will provide the following information: (1) Number of full-time workers in the family; (2) Number of workers who will leave jobs after the war ends; (3) Number of persons in your family who are in the service; (4) Number of persons living or working at some other place, who will return to this community to live and work after the war.

The questionnaire also provides for the checking of purchases or repairs planned for post-war: new shoes, new automobile, used automobile; bathroom units and plumbing; new build new house; floor coverings; furniture; heating unit, central; insurance; kitchen equipment, purchase of house; radio or phonograph; refrigerator; repairs to house; sewing machine; vacation travel; washing machine; water heater, and other items, such as electrical appliances.

Ward chairmen, who are distributing the questionnaire, are: One, Miss Barbara Robinson; Two, Mrs. Charles Lake; Three, Mrs. Ralph C. Clarke; Four, Miss Ruth Harrington; Five, Rockland Motor Corps, Mrs. Ruth Mazzeo; Six, Mrs. Milton

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and it was the recent hurricane which was responsible for some unexpected work at the Snow Shipyards. A net tender similar to those built here was so badly damaged that she has been hauled out for what amounts to rebuilding. The Snow yards are still employing about 400 men.

These three large white doors on the western side of the Algin plant on Crockett's Point loom prominently from the waterfront. That is the nearest to display, however, that the owners of this successful concern have ever been known to make. It is one of several industries which Rockland has been glad to welcome in recent years.

The street cleaning crew which is on deck bright and early every morning might well be nicknamed "Patients of Job." For every day they haul away many cartloads of fallen leaves only to find on the following morning that nature has provided them with twice as many. But Pat and his associates merely smile.

"It's all in the days work," they say.

A Rockland correspondent, who signs "Adam Upp" says: "My wheels calculate that A. Jay See's cow will feed over 32,000 square feet." It now remains to be seen whether Mr. See sees it that way.

I have to thank Steve Kessel of the Rockland post office staff for French versions of the map of France and of the map of Paris and environs. A thickly populated nation is France, and it is easy to see how an American soldier might get lost there, but the map of Paris is so explicit that our boys should have no difficulty in seeing the sights.

Former residents of Vinalhaven are on a strict diet these days in preparation for the annual Vinalhaven banquet and dance which is to be held at the Twentieth Century Club, Boston, 3 Joy street, Beacon Hill. With an address like that how can the "formers" fail to have a glad time. "We feel very proud that this year will be our fif-

Elwell, and Seven, Mrs. Adah Roberts.

Mr. Jones states that a letter and questionnaire are being sent to each man and woman in the service regarding plans after the war. This part of the work of the committee will, of necessity, be carried on rather slowly as there are about 1,000 men and women in the service.

The Kiwanis Club

J. M. Richardson Selects Al-literate Title For Last Night's Lecture

"Seven Salty Sisters" was the alliterative topic of John M. Richardson's talk before the Kiwanis Club last night at their meeting at the Hotel Rockland.

Mr. Richardson, whose chief hobby is the study of steamboats, told interesting stories concerning seven of the steam powered vessels which plied in waters of the Penobscot Bay and River. He brought to the fore the "personalities" of the craft and injected bits of dry humor into his unique presentation.

His stories were concerning the Tug Sommers N. Smith, his first love the Gov. Bodwell, a boatman's boat; the Vinalhaven, now disintegrating near the Algin plant, after 40 years of faithful service in the Penobscot Bay; the Penobscot, which had electric lights nine years ahead of the White House; the City of Bangor, one of the great money makers, but rather unlucky; the Bangor, which burned 25 cords of wood on a trip to Boston, and the Castine, lucky until 1935 when it ran on one of the Bay ledges on a special trip to Vinalhaven.

D. Robert McCarty led the song service with Arthur F. Lamb tickteenth," writes Edwin F. Littlefield of Wollaston.

Acting upon the suggestion of Oliver B. Lovejoy, whose home on Limerock street was nearly opposite the old Rockland shoe factory I am asking if any friend of this paper who has a picture of that establishment will kindly loan it to us for the purpose of having a cut made. I have no recollection of the building, but was present when the lofty chimney was filled. The factory was removed to Warren.

Cap'n Speed of Owl's Head, who is rated the most persistent and most enthusiastic candlepin bowler in Maine, was up-town yesterday for a haircut, and few barbers have ever seen a more luxuriant growth on the dome of a man who confesses that he will be 80 "come next groundhog day." Has been known to bowl 100 strings in a single day (and night).

Rockland persons who have not started their furnace fires, and are anxious to have their heating plants examined will do well to call 434 or 4-8 for free inspection which will be given immediately and courteously. Helps the owner—and the firemen.

"Look at that!" exclaimed Andrew Demuth, and he pointed to one of A. C. McLoon & Co.'s trucks, loaded with ice. It was handsome ice and had been three days on the road from Boston in a box car. Who ever expected to see the day when we would import common every day ice from that distance.

One year ago: Fire destroyed two blocks at the North End owned by David Rubenstein; loss estimated at $142,000—The Kiwanis Club dedicated its service honor roll with address by B. C. Redonnet.—George W. Walker, vice president of the Georges River Mills, Warren, was given a surprise testimonial banquet—James Connellan was re-elected president of the Maine State Postmasters' Association—Among the deaths: Waldoboro, Lizzie Shuman; Warren, Arthur C. Peabody, 65; Waldoboro, William A. Creamer 66 years.

Sunday Night Fire

Damages the Residence of Jerome C. Burrows On Summer Street

Fire, which started from the hot-air heater in the basement, caused a medium amount of damage to the residence of Jerome C. Burrows at 127 Summer street, Sunday night, according to Fire Chief Van E. Russell.

Flames mushroomed up through the partitions, causing the principal damage in the hall, with some damage in a partition on the second floor. About 100 gallons of water was used, and damage to furniture was kept low by the use of nine salvage blankets.

The loss is covered by insurance.

ling the ivories. Ray Grant of the Augusta Club was a visitor and guests of members were Elsha W. Pike and Christopher S. Roberts. President Grossman announced that officers would be elected Oct. 30. D. Robert McCarty reported on the distribution and initial sales of the War Honor Roll postcards, and Almon M. Young, chairman of the War Honor Roll Board, reported that 25 more names would probably be placed on the board this weekend. John M. Pomeroy, program chairman, introduced Mr. Richardson.

OLD FRIENDS
There is no friend like an old friend
Who has shared our morning days—
No greeting like his welcome.
No homage like his praise.

Book Review

K. S. F.

Yankees Were Like This. By Edith Austin Holton. Harper & Brothers, publishers, New York.

This delightful hark-back to the gay early days when Cape Cod was the Mecca of all good times and things.

The story is located in Wellsfleet, Mass., and eyes begin to widen as new inventions came to clutter the well ordered life of her fellow citizens. This story is rich in personalities, with robust and crisp Yankee whaling captains, real neighbors such as the delightful Grandmother with her choice and rugged individualists, about her for friends.

It was in the era of Cleveland and Harrison and of the first murmurs of women suffrage, and when every election was a fair with torchlight processions and bands that made the "welkin ring."

It was in the days of many evangelical revivals of much salty and gay life intermixed with serious problems and high ideals. In fact, this was an epoch making interim of the new ways of life, with electricity and gas the world's hilarious and heaving lift to ease and adventure.

Edith Austin Holton is a woman of high and wide education and has written several novels and much in short stories of high character. This book will be greatly enjoyed by all, as it's the living annals of that period of American life.

George Maurice Derry, 59, well known Rockland barber, died Saturday following several weeks of ill health. He was born in Cushing, son of Hiram and Emeline (Robbins) Derry, and had lived in Rockland many years.

Mr. Derry before coming to Rockland had barbered in Thomaston, Warren and Camden. He was associated for a number of years with Frank L. Newbert in a shop located in a building on the site of the present Bell Shops, and later Mr. Derry and John W. Watts bought out Mr. Newbert, and for some time they conducted two shops, the second being in the Thorndike Hotel. During the past several years, Mr. Derry conducted the shop in the Thorndike Hotel.

He is survived by his wife, Katherine Creamer Derry; a daughter, Miss Barbara Derry, and his mother, Mrs. Emeline Derry, all of Rockland.

Services were held at the residence, 52 Camden street, yesterday, Rev. Walter S. Rounds of Lewiston, formerly of Rockland, officiating. There were many beautiful offerings attesting to the high regard in which Mr. Derry was held by his many friends. Among those from out of town were: Miss Alida Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wood of Camden; Mrs. Lena Linekin, Miss Theresie Linekin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Starrett of Thomaston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ourett of Nantasket, Mass., and Mrs. Hazel Powers of Portland.

Bearers were Kennedy Crane, Blanchard B. Smith, Howard P. Crockett and Stuart C. Burgess. Alan L. Bird, Adoniram J. Bird, Interment was in Achorn cemetery.

[EDITORIAL]

PARENT TEACHER TO GROW

We note with full approval the fact that the local Parent-Teacher Association is coming back to its own, and believe that everyone will cheerfully endorse the current move looking toward a large increase in membership. Under the leadership of the Association's capable president, Oliver W. Holden, the organization is to be extended through the formation of Parent-Teacher groups for each school, acting, of course, in conjunction with the main organization. The executive committee is working upon a complete set of attractive programs for the coming winter, and with all of the members lending their enthusiastic assistance there is bound to be a healthy growth of an organization which means so much to the city's educational welfare. Residents who are not parents are invited to cooperate.

WILLKIE DIDN'T SAY

Having honored the memory of Wendell L. Willkie whom they declined to support when he sought renomination for the Presidency, some of the radio commentators are now seeking to declare what he would have done had not sudden death cut short his brilliant career. They make us tired as the homely old saying goes, and so they do Mrs. Willkie who believes that her husband had not made up his mind, and who expresses the hope that the newspaper writers will let it drop there. With decisive views of his own Wendell Willkie viewed with a critical mood the platforms of both parties and the beliefs of both of the present leaders. But he has passed from this earth and those views should have been buried with him, for lack of a better understanding of them.

ACCUSES MACARTHUR OF EGO

A radio commentator takes Gen. MacArthur to task by declaring that when he landed in the Philippines he should have said "We have come back" instead of "I have come back." The presumed inference is that Gen. MacArthur was over-emphasizing the personal angle. But we choose to view the MacArthur statement in another light. When he was ordered months ago to the Southwest Pacific there was real regret in his acceptance, and he offered reassurance to the brave men who had fought under his lead by saying: "I shall come back to you!" And back he is, with the best right in the world to declare that he has kept his promise.

A BIG SCHOOL PROBLEM

Closing of small schools, with a view to consolidation, is not always popular, as we have seen in our own community, but it must be done, according to Harry V. Gilson, Maine's Commissioner of Education, who believes that it is very necessary if the standards of education are to be improved. He tells the budget committee of the Maine Legislature that "we might just as well forget about a decent education in our small communities until we develop a plan to join together certain small schools." And he adds that we should give our youngsters a break in education.

OUTCOME HARD TO JUDGE

Norman Thomas who is running for the fifth time as Socialist candidate for President should at least have unusual powers of observation and he declares that the outcome of the Presidential race is the hardest to judge of any year he has ever run. But the force of habit is still strong with him for he declares that both Roosevelt and Dewey are "taking us into a new depression and a new war."

We agree thoroughly with the Christian Science Monitor that the Fourth Term is a "central issue" of the Presidential campaign. Editorially the Monitor says:

It is high time the Fourth-Term issue was given the attention it deserves in the great decision American voters must make on Nov. 7. People too easily accept the argument that the voter should not be concerned about a Fourth Term, that his problem is simply, "Who is better qualified to do the job?" Is there not another question, "Which choice will better preserve and foster free government in the United States?"

The two-term tradition was not just a custom into which Americans drifted. The Founding Fathers had had bitter experience with one-man rule and they had read history. They had observed the subtle process by which dependence on personality violates the self-reliance requisite to self-government. They knew that the decay of free government begins not when one man declares himself to be indispensable but when the people come to think him so.

There are serious practical disadvantages in long presidential tenure. One is the difficulty in developing other leadership. The Democratic Party today plainly shows the effects. A second is the staleness and slackness of habitual office-holding—the dust and cobwebs which accumulate when a once-new administrative broom loses its original purpose and enthusiasm.

The Founders could not know that the time would come when a President through his control of office-holders could insure renomination by his party. Nor could they imagine the day when there would be 3,300,000 Federal employees, making, with their families and friends, a voting army of some 10,000,000. Add to that the political janissaries of the Hughes and Kellys. Can anyone still say, there is no more involved than the usual question, Which man will do the better job? Is it not time to recognize the Fourth Term as a vital issue?

ill health. He was born in Cushing, son of Hiram and Emeline (Robbins) Derry, and had lived in Rockland many years.

Mr. Derry before coming to Rockland had barbered in Thomaston, Warren and Camden. He was associated for a number of years with Frank L. Newbert in a shop located in a building on the site of the present Bell Shops, and later Mr. Derry and John W. Watts bought out Mr. Newbert, and for some time they conducted two shops, the second being in the Thorndike Hotel. During the past several years, Mr. Derry conducted the shop in the Thorndike Hotel.

He is survived by his wife, Katherine Creamer Derry; a daughter, Miss Barbara Derry, and his mother, Mrs. Emeline Derry, all of Rockland.

Services were held at the residence, 52 Camden street, yesterday, Rev. Walter S. Rounds of Lewiston, formerly of Rockland, officiating. There were many beautiful offerings attesting to the high regard in which Mr. Derry was held by his many friends. Among those from out of town were: Miss Alida Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wood of Camden; Mrs. Lena Linekin, Miss Theresie Linekin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Starrett of Thomaston; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ourett of Nantasket, Mass., and Mrs. Hazel Powers of Portland.

Bearers were Kennedy Crane, Blanchard B. Smith, Howard P. Crockett and Stuart C. Burgess. Alan L. Bird, Adoniram J. Bird, Interment was in Achorn cemetery.

Isolation Is Dead; No Nation Immune From Attack, Said Dr. Lowe

Rev. Dr. John Smith Lowe, speaking at the Rotary meeting Friday, declared that, isolationism is dead, it's out, no nation is immune from attack. We are living in a changing world, yes, we are already living in a world which has changed.

"The hope of the world is in some form of collective security, and the world waits for bold, constructive leadership," Dr. Lowe continued. "America will have to take the leadership in obtaining this security, and must be strong, united, clear thinking and vocal." Dr. Lowe said that both our political parties are committed to some form of collective security.

"We once lived in a world made up of many little worlds, but fate has shaken us down into one world, and we must live on the philosophy of one world."

Dr. Lowe concluded by saying that, "honorable compromise is the basis of getting together." He mentioned that if the peace is made too hard we will be paying the way for another war, and one which will involve civilians more than the present war. Dr. Lowe was introduced by Walter E. Bowe of the program committee.

President Elmer B. Crockett reported that the Rotary Club committee on the War Chest Campaign had completed about 90 percent of the solicitation. Joseph E. Blaisdell told of the Teen Age Club, which meets two or three nights a week at the Community Building, and President Crockett appointed Lloyd E. Daniels and Thomas C. Stone as members of the board of governors of the Club. Group singing was led by Lloyd E. Daniels, with Stafford M. Congdon at the piano.

Fifty-nine were present, including five visiting Rotarians: James O. Fenner and E. Copeland Lang of Belfast; C. W. Whitmoyer of Myerstown, Pa.; A. Victor Elmore of Camden, and James M. Acheson of Augusta.

HIGH SCHOOL AND POETRY

Here is a chance to make a start in "verse" by the High School students of Maine. The Poetry Fellowship is offering small prizes in this contest for best poems (length not limited) to Maine High School students. Prizes $3, $2 and $1.

Poems to be sent to Mrs. William Jane, Newcastle, Maine, chairman of the contest committee, before April 1st. Send as many poems as you desire. They will all be given close attention, and prizes will be published. This is a good start for any worthy effort in this line.—K. S. F.

Mrs. Harry Clifford of 13 Achorn street, Rockland, has received word that her son, S. Sgt. Harlan E. Edwards, has been promoted to Technical Sergeant. He entered the service April 24, 1942. He wrote recently that he was in Belgium and was well, and that before his mother would receive the letter he would be in Germany. Mrs. Clifford also has four grandsons in service; Pvt. R. E. Young, 20, of Rockland who after returning from North Africa and spending some time at the Valley Forge Hospital in Phoenixville, Pa., is now stationed at Fort Williams, Maine; Pvt. Edward Clark, 18, of Middletown, Conn., stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla.; Roland Clark, 17, U. S. Merchant Marines, training at Sheephead Bay, N. Y., and Pvt. George Perron, 18, of Brooklyn, N. # WORKING FOR VICTORY

Pvt. Adelbert A. French of Rockland, recently met Philip Crabtree of Union in Italy, and wrote home that it was quite a treat to see a Maine man, as his outfit is made up mostly for men from the South and the West. A radiogram, bringing birthday greetings, was received by Mrs. French of 6 Elm street, from whom friends may obtain Private French's address.

Pfc. Richard E. Bean, son of Arthur Bean of Thomaston, recently wrote a brief but interesting letter to Miss Edna Hilt, his Sunday School teacher at the Baptist Church in Thomaston. He said he would appreciate having some writing paper as it was hard to find over there. He wrote, "I go to Paris every night by a Liberty van. The people are dressed well." Friends may obtain his address from Miss Hilt, who is now at South Bristol.

Pvt. Loy Linscott, son of Patrolman Jesse Linscott has arrived in England.

Among the Maine men who are attached to the Battleship Texas and served aboard during the Normandy and Province invasions in June and August, are Melvin Fred Haskell of 33 Pacific street, Rockland who is a gunner's mate, second class; and Edward Robert Killoran, R.F.D. 2, Warren, who is a water tender, second class.

Sgt. John F. Karl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Karl of Rockland, is now stationed in Savannah, Ga., as a gunnery instructor. His address is: Sect. D, Chatham Field. Mrs. Karl and their daughter, Cynthia, left Thursday for Savannah, where they will spend several weeks with Sgt. Karl.

THE WAR CHEST DRIVE

Most Knox County Towns Expect To Hurdle The Top By Saturday Night

Knox County War Chest Committees this week are running in high gear, with all committee workers busy, and chairmen hopeful of reporting their towns "over the top"
by Saturday night.

At latest reports, Camden was leading down the home stretch, with nine-tenths of its $3,400 quota raised on Monday, according to Harold Davis, County War Chest Chairman. The last mile is the hardest, according to Mrs. J. Hugh Montgomery, Camden Chairman, who feels that the time for cheering will be after the goal has been safely reached.

Chairmen for the following Knox County communities whose names have not been previously reported include: North Haven, Lloyd Crockett; Owl's Head, Everett Blethen;
St. George, Charles Rose. North
Haven's quota is $400; Owl's Head, $400; St. George, $200.

At Thomaston, Monday, about one-third of the town's $2,200 quota has been turned in to Harold Dana, War Chest Treasurer, but many of the committee workers had not yet had the day set by the committee for all funds to be turned in,
and the day when it is hoped Thomaston will be "over the top". A group from the Thomaston American Legion is soliciting, in addition to the work of the Women's Division, headed by Mrs. Malcolm Seasey.
Around 100 persons attended the War Chest dinner put on by the Friendship committee last Wednesday evening, and $173 was collected at the dinner to get the drive off to a good start last week, by rais-

NEWBEGIN-LINSCOTT
Richard Clement Newbegin and Bernice Katherine Linscott, both of Rockland were married Monday noon at the home of Rev. Alfred G. Hempstead of the Methodist Church, Mr. Hempstead reading the double ring service.

The couple were attended by Mrs. Loy Linscott of Rockland, sister-in-law of the bride, and Leonard A. Tilton of Haverhill, Mass., uncle of the bridegroom. The bride wore a blue suit with blue accessories and a corsage of orchids.
Her attendant was also dressed in blue.

A reception, with more than 75 attending was held at the home of the parents of the bridegroom, Mr.
and Mrs. Herbert C. Newbegin, 170 Maverick street. Decorations were of Autumn leaves and the table was made attractive with bouquets of white roses and candles. The bride and groom cut the wedding cake and those serving were Mrs.
Ann Butler of Rockland, and Mrs.
Peter Holdensen of Newton Centre,
Mass.

Those from out of town included: Mr. and Mrs. Peter Holdensen, of Newton Centre, Mass., Leonard
A. Tilton of Haverhill, Mass., Mrs.
Mae Bagley of Unity and Haverhill;
Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Kells of West Roxbury, Mass., Mrs. Alfred Storer and daughter, Peggy and Miss Marion Storer of Waldoboro and Mrs.
Charles H. Stenger of Friendship.

Mrs. Newbegin is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse O. Linscott.
She graduated from Rockland High School in 1942 and is employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company as an operator.
Mr. Newbegin graduated from Waldoboro High School in 1937 and is employed at the E. B. Crockett store.

The couple are on a wedding trip to the Western part of the State.
Upon their return they will be at home at 101 North Main street.

The office of Perley R. Damon will be closed until Nov. 6—adv.

Farm Bureau Is 25

And Will Celebrate Its Silver Anniversary In This City
October 27

John M. Richardson of The Courier-Gazette will be the speaker at the annual meeting of Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau in Rockland, Friday. Mr. Richardson has written a book on "Steamboat Lore" and is an authority on early shipping along the Maine coast.

As this is the 25th annual meeting of the organization he will center his talk around the past 25 years.

It was not long ago when a great deal of the farm products of the county were shipped to market by boat. This applied to the poultry, blueberry and apples. Many of the old time poultrymen can remember the old shipping crates that were used to send poultry to Boston. These crates were made at the farm and held many more birds than those of today and weighed more than the full crates of today.

Mrs. Hortense Monaghan of Old Town will give a clothing demonstration which will be of interest to both men and women.

The first executive board of the Farm Bureau will also be in attendance.

Golden Rod Chapter, meets Friday night. Miss Katherine A. Ve-zde will be in charge of the 6:15 supper. Members not solicited will take sweets.

Unless car owners speed up applying for their A books, many of them will be out of gasoline and possibly off the road, when the old books expire Nov. 8.

Nell S. Perry of The Courier-Gazette staff has returned from a week's vacation in Massachusetts.

Rockland High School football team, playing the Gardner High team in Gardner yesterday, lost by a score of 19 to 0. Details will appear in Friday's issue.

Miss Dorothy Trask, a second year student at Gorham Normal School, spent the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E.
Trask, Jr. Miss Trask had as her guest her room-mate Miss Florence Sawyer of Limerick.

Rev. J. Charles MacDonald left today for Milo where, for two weeks
he will conduct evangelistic services at the Milo Baptist Church, of which Rev. Newell Smith, formerly of Tenant's Harbor, is the pastor.

Past Presidents Of Relief Corps Have Banquet and Annual Meeting

The 14th annual meeting of the Past Presidents' Association of Edwin Libby Relief Corps was held Thursday in Grand Army hall.

A delicious banquet was served by Mrs. Doris Ames as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Adelmia Mullen.
Mrs. Winnie Butler and Mrs.
Gladys Murphy. The tables were in the form of a large V for Victory, red, white and blue floral flowers being the centerpieces, donated by Mrs. Ames and Mrs. Bessie Harden.

Mrs. Haraden, president of the Past Presidents' Association, presided during the business meeting.
One Past State President, Mrs.
Mary Cooper, was present. Mrs.
Irene Winslow also attended this meeting.

A brief service was held in memory of our oldest past president,
the late Rebecca Ingraham.

Plans were made for a "Get-together next Summer. It was also voted to have a rummage sale as soon as arrangements could be made, date to be announced.

The newly elected officers are:
President, Mrs. Elizabeth Vinal;
vice president, Mrs. Adelmia Mullen; secretary, Mrs. Gladys Murphy; treasurer, Mrs. Ida Huntley.
Mrs. Huntley was in charge of the program: Reading "The Blind Men and The Elephant," by Mrs.
Doris Ames; selections from a Winston Churchill speech, by Mrs. Mary Cooper; reading, "What One May or May Not Call a Woman," by Mrs. Inez Rackliff; a short story by Mrs. Betty Vinal, closing with the assembly singing "America" with Mrs. Huntley as pianist.

A social hour followed the meeting with Mrs. Mullen trying to find the person or persons who "doctored" her cup of coffee. Mrs.
Butler and Mrs. Murphy were in the dining room and Mrs. Ames and Mullen were in the kitchen at the time the "doctoring" took place.
G. K. M.

Y le Burton J. Murphy, will interview applicants in the U. S. Employment Service office today and Wednesday. All men between the ages of 17 and 50 years are now eligible for training in the U. S. Maritime Service. Men between 18 and 26 years of age may enlist provided they have not received notice of introduction into the Armed Services, it was pointed out.

A Wonderful Dinner

"Some time ago our ship crossed the equator for the first time. As you probably know a sailor is called a Pollywog if he has never crossed the line, but after crossing he is known as a Shellback. Most of our crew were pollywogs and it was up to the shellbacks to do the initiating.

"They formed a Court simulating King Neptune's and carried out a lot of form, having announced that he was aboard the day before we crossed. They sent us a summons stating the reason why we had to appear before the Court. (I have the summons in my locker and will show it when I get home.)

"I will omit the details of the ceremony because they would probably be uninteresting to you. There was a lot of water and paddling connected with it and all on board participated. It was an experience
I never will forget."

A week ago last Sunday I was in Paris at the Red Cross and the Red Cross hostess came up to another fellow and asked us if we'd like to go to a French home to dinner. We said "yes" and were soon on our way.

The menu was as follows: Soup,
tomatoes, cauliflower, omelette,
roast duck, cherries, steak, salad,
chocolate pudding, apple pie, fruit
salad, fresh fruit and coffee.

They took some pictures of us in front of the Eiffel Tower and other places of note. They are going to give us copies of the pictures
as soon as they are finished.
There was a young married couple visiting their hosts and they wanted us to come to their home the following Sunday to dinner so we all went. They had pea soup, ome-lette, and a dish I never heard of before—calfs head; then we had spaghetti, fruit salad, cake and coffee.

I would like to go to Paris again sometime when the stores are open but don't know if I will be able to get there or not."

No Apathy Exists

Among the Republicans of Maine, Who Will Help
Elect Tom Dewey

Alan L. Bird, Rockland, and Mrs.
Hattie Lawry, Friendship, were among those attending the meeting of the Maine Republican State Committee in Augusta Friday called by State Chairman Lloyd B. Morton "to lay plans to get out the vote and elect Tom Dewey in November."

A roll call of the counties revealed that so far as Maine is concerned there exists no apathy about the coming election. On the contrary, nearly every county spokesman predicted a large turnout and strong sentiment for the Dewey-Bricker ticket.

The group of Maine Republicans heard the National Committeewoman from Vermont, Mrs. Consuelo Northrup Bailey, urge the necessity for electing a President who will not dispute with Congress their constitutional right to make laws. "The veto power," she said,
"was given to the president merely as a safeguard. Many Presidents never vetoed a law passed by Congress, Washington vetoed two and Lincoln, three. But Mr. Roosevelt has vetoed 631 bills.

"Even the Democrats concede that the next Congress will have a big majority opposed to New Deal.
To continue Roosevelt in office would mean a continuous deadlock between him and the people's Congress which would disastrously handicap America's conduct of the tremendous problems of peace and reconstruction which are coming up."

A WAR-TIME MESSAGE from GOVERNOR SUMNER SEWALL

MAINE can well be proud of the important contributions its vast forests have made to the winning of the war.
As the military uses of pulpwood have multiplied demand, our farmers and forest workers have tried hard to keep pace with the ever-mounting consumption.

At no time since early in 1942 has the country been more than a step ahead of an actual pulpwood famine. In spite of all efforts there is today a critical shortage, particularly of spruce, fir and hemlock—species with which Maine is generously endowed.

This makes the present emergency peculiarly our responsibility, and so I am appealing again to the people of Maine to increase production. If our farmers will devote every spare day to cutting pulpwood;
if able-bodied men released from the armed services and from other war work can be directed to woods work; if our business men will concern themselves with the work of local Victory Pulpwood Committees; if we all do what we can, I am sure Maine's pulpwood production can be greatly stepped up.

We owe it to our country to do our utmost to shorten the war. We owe it to our state to maintain its leading position in the nation's 6th largest industry.

CHAPTER XVII

"All you have to go on is what Paul said—and he was maliciously lying! He hit on the simplest and surest way of destroying your faith in Steve. My whole argument, Mr. Lanning, is that Paul inadvertently tricked you into losing your nerve—and that you've ruined your chance forever to secure for your principals a weapon as vital as the famous bombshell!"

Mr. Lanning pushed himself away from the doorway. He walked slowly toward her. "I wonder," he said, "if you're just being clever."

"I've used nothing but plain, mid-western, horse sense!"

"Stop using it!" he snarled. "You don't honestly believe that Steve is a traitor to his own country—do you?"

"Of course I do!"

"And that he has been playing square with us?"

"Yes, Mr. Lanning!"

He stared at her a moment longer and said heavily, "I really believe you do mean that."

He began to pace up and down the room. He picked up the brandy bottle and put it down again. He paused to glare at her, then resumed his pacing.

He stopped in front of her. "I don't know, Miss Corey, whether you're being clever or not, but I'm half inclined to believe you're right."

"Why half?" she asked. "Why not decide on it?"

"But what's the good? It's too late!"

"Perhaps Pierre hasn't killed Steve. Perhaps they'll come here with it!"

He shook his head. "Not Pierre. Compared to Pierre, I am the most glib man in the world."

"Mr. Lanning—"

"Will you please stop talking?" he snapped. "You are entirely too persuasive! You are worse than Steve Duncan!"

He started down the room again. He whirled on her. "What have you to gain by this? Is this what you are planning to say to Stromberg—to show me up?"

"Would it save my life?"

"It would not! Isn't that obvious?"

"Yes, Mr. Lanning. Very obvious. All I wanted was to make you see that Steve had not betrayed you."

"But why?" he cried. "You are violently pro-American! You are a chauvinist! You have absolutely no sympathy for our cause! Why have you gone to such trouble to persuade me that Steve is loyal to Germany?"

"Because," Zorie murmured, "in my heart, I believe it."

He stopped and stared at her again, with his eyebrows up. "Anna Boland herself," he muttered, "couldn't have done this more cleverly than you have. But I agree with you, Mr. Corey. I now realize that your fiancé's little speech caught me with my guard down—and that Steve has been playing square with us. And that places me in a most embarrassing position."

Mr. Lanning bent suddenly over the table. His cheeks were puffed out. He blew a sharp breath into the lamp. The flame went out. With all that brandy in his system, Zorie reflected, it should have blown up. The blue beam of his pocket light was flickering around the room.

Then she heard the sounds that he had evidently heard. She heard, above the dimming of the rain, the sputtering sound of feet being pulled out of the mud. Then she heard a man's heavy breathing.

In the darkness, Zorie held her breath. If it was Steve, he was saved! They would both be saved!

Mr. Lanning had tipped out of the room. She heard his voice at the door, then another voice, but the words were unintelligible.

Then Mr. Lanning said: "Come in here. There's someone here I want you to see."

She heard the sound of mud-soaked shoes crossing the living-room. The bright blue spark of the pocket light returned. Someone struck a match. Mr. Lanning muttered profanely as he touched the hot lamp chimney. Then the flame licked up and steadied as he put the chimney in place.

But she was staring at the doorway. She hardly recognized the man who stood there. One eye was closed and black. One cheek was swollen. Blood was leaking from one corner of the man's mouth. His scrubby red hair was so matted with blood and purple-red mud that he looked as if he had been scalped.

His shirt collar was gone. His white dinner jacket was coated with purple-red mud. The left leg of his black trousers was missing from the knee down, and the bare leg exposed was covered with mud.

Only by his sloping powerful shoulders did she identify him as Pierre Savoyard.

He was staring at her. He was leaning backward as if he would at any moment fall over. He licked his bleeding, swollen lips.

"No!" he said softly. "It can't be!"

"What are you talking about, Pierre?" Mr. Lanning inquired carefully.

"No!" he said softly. "It can't be!"

"That girl!" Pierre's voice was a squeak. "I killed that girl with my own hands!"

Winthrop Lanning shrugged. "And before that, you drowned her."

Pierre started toward the chair in which Zorie sat.

"Keep away from her!" Mr. Lanning said sharply. "Don't touch her!"

Pierre's big, hooked hands fell at his muddy sides. He swayed.

"You made a mistake," Mr. Lanning explained. "It was Amber you killed."

"Amber!"

"Yes. But it's none of my affair any longer. You can answer to Mr. Stromberg. You are too impetuous, Pierre. I am afraid that Mr. Stromberg will not be at all pleased with you. Here. Drink some of this. You need it."

Pierre took the brandy bottle. His hand was shaking. Some of the brandy missed his mouth and ran down off his chin, with the blood and the red mud. He managed to empty the bottle, mostly into his mouth.

Winthrop Lanning took it out of his mud-smeared hands and said: "Where is Steve?"

"Dead."

Mr. Lanning gazed at Pierre and said, "It must have been a close thing. What happened?"

"He was almost too quick for me," Pierre answered.

"Where did you leave him?"

"In the mud—off this road a quarter of a mile away." He sat down heavily in a chair and stared at Zorie. Her heart had, for a moment, stopped beating. She was sure she felt it settle in her hair. She felt chilly all through her body.

Then she saw the centipede. It had evidently crawled out of the kitchen. She had never seen a centipede like it—brown and shiny and fully eight inches long.

It crawled along the other side of the room. It was so large, so monstrous that she was sure she was imagining it. Then Mr. Lanning saw it. He cried, "Look at that thing! Pierre! Don't stamp on it! We must find a buffalo! We must find a buffalo, Pierre, and try an experiment!"

"What is a buffalo?" Pierre inquired.

"A giant toad. The buffos were imported a few years ago to kill the insects that eat the cane. I've heard that a buffalo will kill a centipede."

He was panting. "Pierre! Fetch me a buffalo! I want a buffalo, at once! Take the flashlight. You'll find one easily on a night like this! They're swarming on a night like this!"

Pierre's surly growl: "Not now." "Yes—now! At once!"

"But—"

"At once, I said!"

"Very well, my friend. You shall have your buffalo!"

Zorie did not see him go, but she heard the door slam. The pungent, muddy smell she had been noticing seemed stronger.

Mr. Lanning came over to her. He was no longer walking steadily.

"Miss Corey," he said, "you are so lovely, so innocent and so clever—and I am so sorry."

Zorie closed her eyes.

"It is very curious," he said, "do you smell that? It's wild honey. It's in these walls. The soil breeds it and little holes in the outside walls and crawl inside and build their combs and fill them with honey and then my automatic ready. I told him just what his brother had said. I did not think he would move so fast. He was on me before I could pull the trigger."

"Wait a minute!" Mr. Lanning said sharply. "He jumped you the instant you told him that?"

"He did. The car went down a bank and rolled over with us in it."

"Wait a minute!" Mr. Lanning repeated. "This is very interesting. Pierre. I want you to be very sure of this for a very particular reason. The instant you told him that his brother said without questioning you—he jumped you?"

"He did!"

"This young lady," Winthrop Lanning said, "has just gone to the greatest pains to convince me that Steve is loyal to us."

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Mortimer and Miss Bessie Mortimer closed the two Mortimer cottages and have returned to Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keene and two sons have returned from a vacation spent in Bucksport and Massachusetts.

Mrs. Ernest Brackett went Thursday to New Harbor to visit her son Courtland before going to Worcester, Mass., to be with another son Lorimer, for the winter.

Mrs. Elmer Kincaid has returned her Portland residence after a season's stay here.

Mrs. Isabel Cartwright, well known portrait artist, has closed her cottage and returned to Philadelphia.

It goes sour. And there's no way to get it out unless you tear the house down! Men are sometimes very foolish, aren't they? I am referring to my, dear . . . men so often tear their houses down for a little sour honey."

"Here is your buffo," said Pierre's soft, low voice.

Zorie opened her eyes again. Pierre had a huge gray toad in one hand, a long stick in the other. He put the toad on the floor and pushed the centipede toward the toad.

It was the largest toad Zorie had ever seen. It squatted, with its head up, its little reptilian eyes blinking in the soft yellow light. It must have measured fully seven inches across and it must, as it squatted, have measured fully six inches in height.

Zorie closed her eyes upon a brain that was slowly reeling with sickness. When she opened them, the centipede was crawling over the buffalo, and the buffalo seemed unaware of it. The centipede crawled over the toad's reptilian gray face. When it was crawling over the buffalo's mouth, the mouth opened. The buffalo gulped a fold of the centipede into its mouth. Slowly, the struggling centipede vanished into the toad.

Zorie wanted to scream, but she hadn't the strength to scream. Mr. Lanning was pounding on the table with a bottle.

"They eat them!" he cried. "They really do!"

Zorie now saw the long knife open in Pierre's hand. She saw the flick of the knife as it flew from his hand to the floor. His sharp point was imbedded in the floor an inch from the buffalo. The buffalo jumped. Pierre kicked it across the room and into the kitchen and out the back door.

He returned and stopped before Zorie. His blood-and-mud-smeared face came close to hers. "Ah-nah!" he said in his soft, low voice. "Ah-nah!"

She shrank back. And she knew in that moment the feeling of full hatred. She had once thought she had hated Amber. But her dislike of that arrogant girl had been the most tepid of emotions compared to the fury she experienced when this man put his swollen filthy face so close to hers.

Soreness from Loose FALSE TEETH

If rubbing of plates causes irritation and sore spots FASTEREITH will help hold them tighter, relieve soreness and soothe gums irritated by loose plates. Eat, talk and laugh with more comfort and security. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREITH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plates. Checks plate odor (denture breath). Get FASTEREITH at any drug store.

IS THAT SO?

[For The Courier-Gazette]

So you're tired of the shipyard. And it's got you off your feed. And you're thinking of retiring? Ah, too bad. It is indeed. This is our advice, kid. Don't take it hard. If you want the foxholes We'll take the yard.

So you just can't bear the foreman And he's getting in your hair And you're ready for a walkout Now-now, there, there. Before you act too rashly, — From admiral to yeoman, You can have the Axis. Give us the foreman!

What! You didn't get your bonus. And it's driving you to drink? Oh, and ah, the pit! (That's what you think.) This is our opinion— If we were you, you can phone us— We got the Huns, now We want a Bonus!

So you're going to strike, eh, fella? Well, while you're on vacation You can blow a ring of smoke Around this consideration: When the ships quit coming Perhaps you think we'll hike? Ain't it kiddin'?

We're gonna strike! C. L. T.

TODAY

This little strip of light Twixt night and night, Let me keep bright. Today! And let no shadow of Tomorrow Nor sorrow From the dead yesterday Gainsay my happiness Today! And if Tomorrow shall be sad, Or never come at all, I've had At least—today! —Edward Hersey Richards.

YOUR PART AND MINE

[For The Courier-Gazette]

Yours is the fighting, gear, and mine the waiting; Yours is the blood and sweat and mine the tears! Mine is the loneliness, so unending, Unending days and nights of haunting fears!

You storm the beaches where the bombs are falling! I tend the home fires—keep them burning bright. Dearest, my heart to yours is ever calling. My thoughts are always with you day and night.

Yours is the courage grim you walk With dangers. Mine is the humdrum round of household chores, Turning a placid face to gaze of strangers— Hiding an agony the world ignores!

You carry on while shells are bursting near you And unseen death stalks at each fighters side. While I write letters to uphold and cheer you— Your courage and your daring are my pride.

My dearest, when the rose-tipped dawn is breaking I find my lips are whispering your name. You're my last thought at night, my first on waking— And if tears fall could anybody blame?

My dear, I'll cover you with constant prayer. Until the victory comes one golden When you'll be coming back from "over there"— Home, my beloved, evermore to stay! Tenant's Harbor. Nellie M. Ervine

BELLS AT EVENTIDE

As clashing sounds of busy day Abstains from every blatant height While evening shadows fold their play And love-light soothes the quietest air There comes upon the gentle air An overtones harmonious rare Whose melody soothes away dull care.

'Tis bells for evening vespers ringing Their music call the heart to singing With mystic Symphonies all divine Recalling heights of other days Of cloistered joys and gentle ways Then comes the answer, never ceases Keep hold of faith. It brooks no delays. Kathleen S. Fuller

POETRY

[For The Courier-Gazette]

When the world is done With overmuch talk, Out of the hush May rise a cooling mist Of simple words— Your kind of words— O poet, Who spoke from the Mount! Agnes Armstrong recently received the first letter for many weeks from their son who is in Belgium. It stated that he has received a promotion and is now Sgt. W. Raymond O'Jala.

"Early in 1943, Norman Rockwell completed his famous series of paintings 'The Four Freedoms.' He had already achieved celebrity as an interpreter of America's folkways. Now his stature became international and he was the recipient of a global wave of acclaim. It was at this time that the artist conceived of a subject comparable in emotional appeal and perhaps even more challenging to his mature craftsmanship. He saw in Jennifer Jones as the simple girl of Lourdes in Franz Werfel's 'The Song of Bernadette' the inspiration for one of his finest canvases. Here, through the medium of a lone girl, glorious

Thursday. The decorations were done by Chester Vose, consisting of Fall flowers and leaves. "Our Hero" Takes On Added Years and Prospect Of Marriage

(Second Installment)

(By Irene Member)
During the first years of his adolescence Our Hero was, put it rather mildly, inclined to slouchiness. His droop shoulder seemed to droop a little more, his arms and legs seemed to grow longer—which made his body look shorter—his hands outgrew his arms and his feet outgrew his "shanky" legs and his clothes seemed to fold upon themselves in creases and hang about his body—like rags hanging on a limby stick. His voice? It didn't change much—it was full grown and mature when he was born and his body and limbs simply grew up around it.

When he entered the law office he continued to do what he had always done—nothing. Work? Not he! Wouldn't even mow the lawn and his heaviest labor was taking enormous amounts of food into his capacious stomach.

Soon, however, Hero's lank frame began to "fill out" (as c.d. Sime said) and when his "teens" were behind him people began to remark: "Looks like Hero is heading to be a big man." His clothes fitted him better and he began to take pride in his appearance. A skillful tailor padded the droopy shoulder a bit, urged Hero to "throw your shoulders back and get rid of that little hump in your back" and, for a wonder, Hero took this sound advice to heart, shed his slouchiness and "perked" up considerably.

During all this time he never ceased to "flap his tongue"—as his Dad, old Sime, called it. "If he keeps on he'll be a pretty good lookin' feller—if his tongue flappin' don't kill him and everybody else before he stops flippin' out and dressin' up," said old Sime.

It was the truth—Hero was fast developing into a big, good looking man! Strange, but true. Hero was never a bashful chap, far, far from it, and he began to attend the social gatherings in town—and even some in surrounding towns. Next he joined the Grange and here he found an opportunity to forge to the front as an orator. He entered into every discussion and talked on every subject and soon developed into a very clever talker. Much of the harshness left his voice. It mellowed and he soon learned to use the remarkable power of his voice for something else than bellowing. His voice was all he possessed with which to hold the attention of an audience and he was smart enough to realize it and capitalize it. He was smart enough, also, to listen to speeches made by men who were fluent and experienced speech-makers and to ape their delivery and mannerisms until he developed into a really fine speaker.

When he was in his early twenties the daughter of one of the prosperous townsmen became interested in Hero—Hero, to be absolutely truthful, was interested in only one thing in the world—himself. However, although the young lady was not overly attractive, she finally "landed her man" as is usually the case.

There was quite a "to do" when the engagement was announced—which put Hero more in the limelight on the social horizon, especially among the female members of the social set, of which there is always one in every town, city or hamlet. Hero was the topic of many "get-togethers" and some of the ladies took great pleasure in whispering behind their plump or skinny hands (as the case might be) that "It is really too, too bad that Hero should be snared by a female so many years his senior, but, of course there is no accounting for taste and if Hero wanted a wife almost old enough to be his mother, why, well, he was at liberty to throw himself away if he chose to do so, I suppose."

However, Hero didn't consider the few years difference in their ages of enough moment to throw over the financial and social assets which would accrue to him by his marriage and so, like Hero's voice, the engagement went booming along until

Since Pearl Harbor, the total number of airfields in the United States has increased by over 3,000. There are now more than 3,000 and the largest most elaborate fields have increased 700 per cent. The equipment for making new aviation grounds alone is now worth half a billion dollars.

In the Netherlands all dogs have been drafted by the Nazis which are physically fit for Army service, and they are subject to military duty at any time.

Educational Club

Friday's Meeting At Glen Cove Marked By Interesting Address

The Woman's Educational Club met at Glen Cove with Mrs. Hazel Woodward and again we have to thank her for her gracious hospitality. Dr. David Hamilton spoke on "The Civil Air Patrol." "It was organized two weeks before the attack on Pearl Harbor so it can be assumed there were those in the 'know' who made some attempt at 'preparedness.' Its original purpose was to utilize civilian units for the protection of our Coast line against sub-warfare. The speaker defined it 'as the step child of the army air force.' It operates under army and navy regulations.

There is now an urgent call for Civil Air Cadets, the age is 15 years to 18 years. The course covers discipline, meteorology, mechanics and the care and repair of planes. At the beginning of the war all those who owned planes were obliged to ground them and dismantle radios used in these ships. The army did this to prohibit any interference to conflict with army fliers. There were 42,000 such craft in New England.

Rockland has a fine airport and its upkeep will present a major problem after the war. It is quite possible that the Civil Air Patrol may be used for a permanent set-up along these lines after the war.

Dr. Hamilton mentioned also the need for emergency landing fields for the post-war time when the world has become 'air conscious.' There is to be a ladies auxiliary of the Civil Air patrol where girls and women may avail themselves of this course the same as their brothers. This branch is still in the embryo state, with Mrs. Hamilton as its director. Dr. Hamilton is flight director. Our host, Rev. Mr. Woodward spoke on "The Life We Live."

He told of the attributes of the Christian life and its contrasting values. For all our daily problems could be measured by the axiom "What Would Jesus Do?" He stressed the daily check up for the Christian for progress and improvement. "Today's errors must be corrected tomorrow. God is the universal father and we are his children so it behooves the Christian to give careful thought for his daily living—not a dull dependence upon God's goodness. 'Sometimes I feel like asking 'What Price Popularity?' for heaven is a stumbling block for many. I've no doubt that many are led to destruction because the 'crowd' is doing thus and so. It becomes very important therefore that we ally ourselves with Christian people with character and ideals befitting our Divine sonship with our Creator."

At the evening session the first speaker was Mrs. Kathleen S. Fuller who in her lovely and gracious manner, urged club members to continue the work of the club so ably carried on by our efficient and tireless president, Mrs. Rich, during 25 years. "No stopping" was Mrs. Fuller's subject, and her talk included bits of original verse, all tending to encourage members to strive for new members, renewal of membership, and life members, during this 25th Anniversary year.

Lewis Tatham principal of Erskine Academy, spoke on "Some Problems of Education." He pointed out that juvenile delinquency is one of the greatest problems, and said that what is put into the minds and hearts of pupils is of more effect than anything else. He said that kindness and understanding should be shown to all pupils, and even in kindergarten children should be encouraged to be helpful.

Broad objectives should be sought, and a good atmosphere, with encouragement for all should be one of the chief objects of any school. As many activities as possible should be taken up, and above all, as a disciplinary method, scholars should be taught that moral law is inescapable. If possible, the emotional side of a child's life should be taken care of, and all should be taught to distinguish between opinion and fact.

The musical treat of the evening consisted of two solos by Miss Bertha McIntosh—"Out of the Dusk to You," and "Wrap your Dreams in the Red, White and Blue," also two cornet duets by Frank Young and Robert Bishop, with Miss McIntosh at the piano, "Gloriana," and "Rustic Dance."

At this meeting four new life members were added, Mrs. Hazel Woodward, Miss Mary Gerrish, Mrs. Ruth Ellingwood, Mrs. Emma Bradstreet.

This And That

One Soldier Writes This Endearing Message To His Mother:

"I never knew what home was before I came into the Army, which is over two years now but I tell you that I would know by now. I'm a different man for I never prayed much. I mean I never stopped to think about praying but I sure do now. I don't think folks that there are men in this world that prays more than I do and I will keep on praying cause I know God is the only one that can keep us and bring us back together again."

The galleries and great nave of venerable Notre Dame church in Montreal, Canada, have accommodations for 10,000 worshippers at one time. This church is patterned after France's Notre Dame cathedral.

The Nazis will soon be asking for a breakfast nook. Earlier they were asking for the world.

Expressive sign in front of a gas station: "Ethel is out."

Recipe Sherbet (For Freezer)
1/4 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 cup well washed fresh peach pulp
2 1/2 cups rich milk
Mix the ingredients. The mixture may curdle a little, but it will come smooth again in the freezing. Pour at once into the freezing can and freeze in the usual manner.

"I heard..."
"They say..."
"Everybody says..."
"Have you heard..."
"Did you hear..."
"Isn't that awful..."
"People say..."
"Did you ever..."
"Somebody said..."
"Would you think..."
"Don't say I told you..."
"Oh, I think it's perfectly terrible!"

Miss: "Mary I think I smell something burning downstairs. Did you remember to turn off the electric iron when you left the ironing board, as I told you?"
Maid (newly arrived): "Yes'm, I did, I mos' surely did. I pulled that chain once lak you tol' me, and Cen I pulled it again to make sure."

Even yet one sometimes sees reference to the Charles Dickens' readings, when that celebrated English writer came to this country. I clipped the following from a New York contemporary:

"Your correspondent, Charles A. Hughes, quotes from Martin Chuzzlewit the story of Charles Dickens' visit to New York.

"It might be added that one of the first things Charles Dickens did was to repair the Chickering Hall on the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and 17th street, where he recited his celebrated Christmas Carol. And there are still some oldtimers extant in this town who were present on that memorable occasion.

"A new food element known as 'food yeast,' with a slightly meaty flavor and as much as 50 per cent higher grade protein content, has been developed in Great Britain.

"There!" exclaimed wife in disgust "I knew that overnight friend of yours wasn't to be trusted. I've just counted the towels and one of them is missing."

"Was it a good one?" inquired semi-interested hubby mildly.
"It was the best we had. It was the one with 'Grand Palace Hotel' on it."

Did you ever try rubbing with salt before putting an egg that has a cracked shell on to cook? The salt will seal the crack, also put plenty of salt in the water and boil carefully. I mean not at full blast.

More than ten millions in the estate of Milo M. Belding of New York goes to the aid of crippled children, now that Mrs. Belding has died. She also left as personal property, $100,000 to charities. These facts make one have more faith in the goodness of mankind.

Rockport Man Calls Attention To Some Points Worth Knowing

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

May I call your attention to a few things that should be called to the attention of the voters before the November election.

July 2, two and a half weeks before the Democratic National Convention was held. Drew Pearson stated over the air that Henry Wallace would not be the Democratic candidate for the office of Vice President because Winston Churchill does not want Wallace at the Peace Conference because of his views on the liberation of India and the return of China to the Chinese. Again on July 23, directly after the Democratic National Convention, Drew Pearson stated over the air that the Democratic National convention was the most "dictated" convention he had ever attended.

The statement regarding Wallace was not denied and as Wallace is not the candidate we must assume that the statement made by Pearson is true, and that Churchill believes that he can handle Roosevelt, but could not handle Mr. Wallace.

It is hardly necessary for the Prime Minister of England to tell the people of the United States who they may or may not have for President and Vice President, and if we permit him to do so we must have forgotten about the Boston Tea Party and the battles of Concord and Lexington.

It was not an accident that brought the private car of the President into a Chicago Railroad station during the Democratic National Convention, and it was not an accident that held it in the station long enough for the President to hold a conference with the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Hannigan. It is reported that at this conference Mr. Roosevelt told Hannigan to see to it that Sidney is taken care of, meaning Sidney Hillman, who is a well known advocate of communism.

There should be no place in the United States for those who advocate alien forms of government or those who cater to them. Sidney Hillman has no more right to barter the vote of the men and women of organized labor than the Southern Democrats had to sell the Negroes on the auction block in slavery days. During the lifetime of that grand old man of organized labor, Samuel Gompers, he always advised the members of organized labor to keep away from politics and politicians, and if he were alive today he would tell the members of Organized Labor that the pathway over which Sidney Hillman is attempting to lead them leads to destruction and that keeping any man in the White House as President of the United States for 16 years leads toward a Dictator, regardless of whether the man claims to be a Democrat or a Republican.

The men and women of organized labor in the State of Maine will convince the people of the world with their ballots Nov. 7, that they are satisfied with the Republic of the United States of America and its form of government, and that America still belongs to Americans.

With The Homes

The first of the series of clothing leader meetings, "Reclaim the Family Wardrobe," was held in Nobleboro, Oct. 11. Mrs. Adney Peck, clothing leader, was in charge of the meeting and demonstrated how to clean coats, dresses, and belts.

Mrs. Florence Prentice, chairman, and Mrs. Roxie Weeks, clothing leader, gave 10 demonstrations on how to clean and care for clothes at the meeting on "Reclaim the Family Wardrobe" in Bristol, Oct. 13. Some of the demonstrations given included cleaning gloves in a paraffin and solvent mixture, cleaning a soiled collar with soap jelly, removing grease spots, removing shine from worsteds and cleaning a belt with art gum. Seventeen women attended.

Mrs. Blanche Fowles, assistant home demonstration management leader in Huxton Hill conducted a meeting on Care and Repair for Longer Wear, in North Edgecomb, Oct. 5. Mrs. Fowles demonstrated how to make polish and clean silver, shampoo a rug, sharpen a knife and paint inside a lamp shade for better illumination.

Charlotte Cleaves, Extension clothing specialist, was in the county Friday, Oct. 13 and attended the meeting at Orr's Corner on Wartime Information Service conducted by the home demonstration agent.

HOSPITAL CONFERENCE

Knox and Camden Institutions Had Representatives in Wiscasset

A regional conference of hospitals was held Wednesday night at Ledges Inn, Wiscasset. Twenty-eight were present, representing the membership, which includes: The Bath Memorial Hospital, Bath; the Miles Memorial Hospital, Damariscotta; the Waldo County Hospital, Beloit; the Knox County General Hospital, Rockland; the Camden Community Hospital, Camden; and St. Andrews Hospital, Boothbay Harbor.

Speakers were: Dr. Frederick T. Hill, president of the State Hospital Association; Mrs. Margaret Jones, president of the State Nurses' Association; Miss Isabelle Dunn of the Public Health Nursing Association and Miss Pearl Fisher, secretary of the Maine Hospital Association.

Dr. Hill emphasized the importance of the small community hospital, advocated tax funds for the care of the indigent and that hospitals be re-imposed by the State on a cost basis and suggested that some change in the present budget for hospitals by the State might be required. He also spoke of the increasing interest in hospital associations and mentioned the importance of an accounting survey that all hospitals might have the same method in bookkeeping.

Mrs. Jones spoke upon the problem of the shortage of nurses, bringing out clearly hospital changing conditions which have made for the time being a change in methods of keeping the nursing staff up to hospital requirements.

Miss Dunn emphasized the importance of more supervisors in the different State Centers, dwelling somewhat upon an intensive training for auxiliary help that can take care of those cases that do not need expert care.

Miss Fisher suggested that a committee be appointed from a board of directors in each community, to investigate the conditions in the hospital which might be met by trained auxiliary aid. Lively and interesting discussions followed the remarks of all speakers.

The Damariscotta hospital acted as host on this occasion. Credit is due Mrs. Mary A. Morris, superintendent of the Miles Memorial Hospital, for the arrangements made for the banquet and the speakers.

Knox County General Hospital was represented by Ralph L. Wiggin, president of the association; Alan L. Bird and Dr. Neil A. Fogg.

Kingman Name of Town Granted Camden To Aid Duck Trap Bridge

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 12

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— In answer to A. J. See's question in the Oct. 3 issue of your paper "What town in Maine in Penobscot County had a portion of it granted by Massachusetts to Camden in aid of a bridge across 'Duck Trap Stream'."

The record as I have it gives the name "Kingman." The north and east part, including about 900 acres, belonged to the Waterson and Pray Purchase. The remaining part was granted by Massachusetts to Camden, in aid of a bridge across Duck Trap Stream.

Organized as McCrillis Plantation July 4 1859. Re-organized March 28, 1866, under the name of Independence Plant. Incorporated February 1873 and named in honor of R. S. Kingman, of the firm of Shaw & Kingman. Contains about 15,000 acres.

High School Notes

An occasion long to be remembered was that of Oct. 3 when the senior class held a reception for the 20 Freshmen.

Senior boys washed each Freshman's face with a sponge and also gave a paddling. The "address of welcome" was read by Harold Pella; Edna Polky had to teach Chester Davis how to dance; May Mills and Harding Cold were blindfolded and told to walk on eggs (which were egg shells) and every time they stepped on them they received a paddling.

George Dennison "proposed" to Jane Smalley; Dawn Magnuson read an interesting letter from her "sweetheart in the Navy;" and Lawrence Wilson had to apologize to Principal Hunnewell for misbehaving in class. Mary Watts and

The Flying Bomb

And How It Affects Britain's Attitude Toward Post-War Germany

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Demaree Bess, associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, has written an interesting article concerning the attitude of the British nation toward post-war Germany. There follows, in condensed form, outstanding points in the article by Mr. Bess.

"During a few short weeks this Summer I watched a revolution take place in the political thinking of an entire nation—the British nation. I watched another nation—the German nation—seal its own fate, probably for several decades to come.

"What accomplished this? An amazingly simple invention known as the flying bomb, which was treated so lightly when it first appeared that it was given the mocking name of 'doodlebug.' But the doodlebug is no joke, either to the Britons who suffered from it or to the Germans who invented it. Hitler's scientists who discovered the flying bomb too late for it to exert any decisive influence upon the war, but they discovered it just in time to assure that Germany will not enjoy an independent existence during the foreseeable future.

"Why? Because the buzz bomb has shocked every thinking Englishman into full consciousness that it is conceivably possible now for a European aggressor to hammer the British Isles into subjection without crossing the English Channel or risking a single pilot in the air over Britain.

"To Americans, and even to Russians, the threat of the robot is merely a subject for speculation about what some future super-robot might eventually do to them. But to Britain the robot is a fearful actuality, and it accordingly has changed many British ideas concerning post-war Europe.

"Other things being equal, this new weapon gives any European aggressor an advantage against Britain. If the Germans had perfected this weapon in 1940, instead of 1944, the British people almost certainly would have lost the war. Englishmen are extremely grateful that this German discovery came four years too late. They also are determined never again to be placed in such jeopardy. They are determined that never again shall Germany have an opportunity to use this weapon against them.

"The British knew that their own planes when they made mass attacks upon cities held by the enemy, were almost as deadly as the doodlebug. They knew that American weapons also victimized hundreds of thousands of women and children not only in Germany but in France and Holland, Belgium and Norway. In total warfare it is inevitable that women and children who live on battlefields must lose their homes or be maimed or killed through the use of a variety of weapons.

"So it is not the brutality of the flying bomb which revolutionized British political thinking, but its diabolical efficiency in performing the one function for which the Germans designed it—the shelling of the British Isles. Although it came too late for this war, the flying bomb can be made so cheaply that only the closest control of possible aggressors in Europe can guarantee Britain against future disaster.

"For this reason the flying bomb settled all British arguments as to what to do with Germany. One British group, headed by Lord Vansittart, agreed that Germans are incurably militaristic and cannot be entrusted with an independent government of their own until they become completely re-educated, which is the work of generations. But this argument was challenged from all directions. The liberals and Socialists insisted that Europe can never be healthy until the German people achieve their own reformation. But the advent of the flying bomb means that British opinion is now solidly behind the occupation of the whole of Germany. It means that the British are prepared to shoulder this job alone if the allies do not undertake the responsibility of sharing the task with them.

"Lord Vansittart confidently expects that the occupation of Germany will continue for as long as sixty years. He contends that modern weapons have made Germany's prolonged occupation a comparatively simple matter now. Only a few armed divisions and a few war planes will suffice to provide the necessary police force. Backed by this authority, Allied inspectors would have little difficulty in making sure that the Germans are not rearming."

HIGH SCHOOL HIGHLIGHTS

Both classes of Junior Business Training composed of Freshmen, taught by Mrs. Sturtevant, visited the Court House and Jail this week in connection with their study of legal papers and justice. Some of the most interesting things were the old deeds in the Registry of Deeds office, the law library with its winding staircase, the sheriff's dog, "Blitz," the Judge of Probate's office, the court room, the short wave sending set, and the cleanliness of the cells in the Jail. The groups are grateful to Sheriff Ludwick, Mrs. Helena Coltart, Robert Webster, and Margaret Crockett for the courtesy shown them on this trip.

The musical groups, under Mr. Cain, orchestra leader, meet Tuesdays, as follows: Second period, Senior band; third period, beginners; fourth, baton twirlers; fifth, jazz band; sixth, Senior orchestra; seventh, Junior band; eighth, Junior orchestra.

The food booth at the Freshman social was in charge of Lynne Rogers. Her assistants were Ruth Bowley, Gayle Rogers, Anna Bulard, Kathleen Paul and Greta Nelson. Punch, sandwiches, ice cream bars and brownies were sold. The latter were made by Freshman Home Economics girls. Profits came to $25.13.

The Senior Librarians' Club presented a "Month of October" program at Tuesday's assembly. The program opened with the song "October" by the club. Each librarian told about an important happening on a certain date in October, indicating the scope of the library for reference work. The speakers and their subjects were:

1. 1939, "The Germans invaded Czechoslovakia," Lois Benner.
2. 1921, "General Pershing placed Congressional Medal of Honor on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in France," Florence Knight.

American Education Week will be observed Nov. 5-11. Plans are being made for an evening session of Junior and Senior High Schools to which parents will be invited.

The Freshman and Sophomore girls in the Home Economics classes have brought sugar to class to make brownies and fudge to send overseas to friends and relatives for Christmas gifts. The brownies are packed by cutting in shape of the can, then the can is heated to exhaust the air, sealed, and cooled quickly. The fudge is turned into greased cans to harden, and then are sealed, and cooled. Nuts, cookies, candy, etc., have also been packed. These cans are the same as previously used at the canning center and are sealed air-tight. It is hoped that the sealed cans may be helpful to the community for this purpose from time to time throughout the year.
